Why is our HUMINT training important?

The recruitment and management of confidential informants is a high-risk area of law enforcement with inherent dangers. However, if those risks are managed correctly this area of law enforcement can yield great rewards. The successful recruitment and management of CI's can help keep our communities and colleagues stay safe by providing unique access to usable, timely, lifesaving intelligence.

Our training team have having operated, trained and mentored with great success in challenging environments such as Northern Ireland, the Balkans, the Middle East, Latin America and Africa.

HUMINT sources are an invaluable asset in the law enforcement tool box, but only if deployed correctly. HUMINT sources can add to or complete a richer picture of what those who seek to harm are planning. They also present significant risk to law enforcement's professional reputation if they are not managed correctly.

Kapsuun Group training packages are tailored to individual client's needs; enhancing their abilities to achieve measurable and sustainable results.
